The Science and Experience of Closeness

Four Minutes of Forever

Sit face to face. Look toward each other's eyes and stay with your own sensation.

1. Timer in reach. A raised hand, or the word stop, ends it. Optional line: we look, we notice, we can stop.
2. Four minutes. Blinks are allowed. Glance away to settle, then return. Do not decode the other face.
3. When time ends, or a hand or the word stop ends it, look away on purpose. Early still counts.
4. One notice each, from your own side only. One sentence. Do not interpret your partner's face.

The standard is four minutes inside about fifteen. Ending early completes the session.

Skip this if anyone has been drinking, or if it is a dare. Stop for dizziness, panic, or a wish to get out. A long look is not consent to touch or sex.

Passing finishes the session. Without gaze, attend to your own hands or to sound. You do not have to take hold.
